When a child or young person is in their 'window of tolerance', they can think and learn. When they move beyond this all they can do is try to survive. We must help them to find their way back there so that they can thrive.